FOREST VIEW

We are having good weather for the farmers. The gardens are being planted and the flowers are blooming, which makes it look like Spring, notwithstanding the cool, frosty mornings. Some of the fruit trees are in bloom. It is to be hoped they will not be killed.

Mar. and Mrs. Frank Woolbridge motored from North Carolina last Thursday to the home of J. A. Martin where they spent the night and went over to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Woolbridge on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Martin visited in this home Saturday night.

Mrs. Annie Odor and son Thomas and Mr. Ellis Martin spent last Sunday in the home of his sister Mrs. W. C. Lee.

Mr. S. J. Lee and son Herbert of Appomattox were also visitors in this home.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Woolbridge spent last Sunday in the home of J. A. Martin.

Miss Oliver Lewis spent last week-end at home and visited Miss O'Brien while there.

PAMPLIN

A very impressive memorial service was held at the Baptist Church on Sunday morning, in memory of Mrs. Sallie Pankey, who passed to her heavenly reward on March 8, 1930.

Her pastor, Rev. W. B. Dulung spoke of her faithful service and loyalty to the church and Mr. L. N. Ligon spoke of her work in the Sunday School, and Miss Lucy Rice of her missionary zeal and liberality in Christian service. A quartette, beautifully sang, "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?" consisting of Messrs. Wolf, Walter Payne, Ed. Carville and James Inge.

We feel that in the going home of Mrs. Pankey, the church and community has suffered a great loss.

The annual dues social of W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. O. E. Peterson on Wednesday afternoon with a large percentage of its membership present. Delightful programs were rendered and refreshments served. Those serving on program were Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Franklin, Mrs. W. R. Brightwell, and Mrs. Malone.

CHILDREN SLAIN IN BRONZE AGE FOUND

Bones Dug Up in Jericho Prove Early Sacrifice.

Jericho, Palestine.—The practice of child-sacrifice on the site of Jericho in the Bronze age was revealed by the excavations of the British archaeological expedition.

Tragic aspects of ancient life within the walled city before the Israelite conquest were revealed during excavation of the bones of children killed sacrificially in the years prior to Joshua's successful assault on the city.

The correspondent was accompanied by Professor Garstang on a visit to the excavations at old Jericho where the Sir Charles Marston expedition has been working some time.

The defunct child, twelve feet thick of exceptional height, was found to have been built about 2000 B. C. But the excavations have many previous assumptions about old Jericho, which was cursed and burned by Joshua.

The excavator has discovered that the earlier city had the largest wall of the city begun to decline and the population, making necessary the building of smaller and more easily defended walls in later centuries.

The theory that an earthquake caused the collapse of the wall of Jericho, which will be worked out by the expedition next, as this season's work will end.

The biblical version is that Joshua was instructed to halt on the seventh day, blowing trumpets and then, on the eighth day, all the people shouted with a great shout and the wall fell and they marched in. The inhabitants of the besieged city were slain and the city itself burned.

In the buried city, as it is exposed today, the remains of charred corn in a bin were seen which were with the remains of the city.
